THE BURN LIST WK.2

For my Burn List for this week I think I am not going to go with a specific list. Last week a check list seemed to somewhat slow me down so for this week I want to try going a different route and try to just have a plan of attack but not set it to a to do list specifically. Basically I want to do all the 0% first and just get them out of the way. Afterwards I need to do all the assignments as they are due or if I have the breathing room just get them out of the way as well. Luckily there is a space of a couple of days this week so I feel I can get much done early. Most of the time this week will be in preparation of getting my ePortfolio done.

Just the planning of the page and how it will look like will take much time. Then there is the message I want to send of my personal brand. I am thankful that we have had all these assignments to help us have an idea of where to start and how to get what we need.
